

Mary Simmerman
Vice President,
F-35 Supply Chain Management
Lockheed Martin Aeronautics

Mary Simmerman is the Vice President of Supply Chain Management for the F-35 Program. She joined Lockheed Martin in April 2011. In this role, she is responsible to establish and execute acquisition strategies to support program plans while maintaining procurement system integrity. In addition, she is responsible to ensure that suppliers execute on their production commitments, achieve their affordability and international goals and provide a full range of sustainment services.

Mary came to Lockheed Martin from Bell Helicopter Textron, where she last served as the Vice President of Global Supply Chain Management and Textron International's Mexico Operations from 2006-2011. In addition, to Bell Helicopter-Textron, she has held corporate and executive leadership positions with Northrop Grumman and the Boeing company supporting space, as well as civil and military programs for both fixed wing and rotorcraft platforms.

Mary has spent over 35 years in the Aerospace and Defense industry in Operations, procurement, Business Management and Program Management. Among her assignments, she has served as the Vice President of Supplier and Material Management for Boeing's Space and Communication Business Unit and Vice President for Procurement for the Northrop Grumman Corporation.

Mary holds a bachelor's degree in Business, an MBA and is a certified Six Sigma green belt. She has served as Chair for the Aerospace Industries Association Supplier Management Council for Textron, the Conference Board A&D Industry representative for the Boeing Company, and SME for Northrop Grumman for the Institute for Supply Chain Management.
